IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
LYNCHBURG DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

v.

JAMES DEMETRIUS ROBINSON,
Defendant.

CASE NO. 6:02-cr-70098

MEMORANDUM OPINION

JUDGE NORMAN K. MOON

Defendant James Demetrius Robinson (“Defendant”) was identified as an individual who may qualify for retroactive application of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 under Section 404 of the First Step Act of 2018. (Dkt. 55). This matter has been briefed and is ripe for review. For the following reasons, the Court will grant Defendant retroactive relief under the First Step Act.

Defendant was indicted on September 18, 2002, and charged with a single count of distribution of five grams or more of cocaine base in violation of 21 U.S.C. §§ 841(a)(1) and 841(b)(1)(B). (Dkt. 3). At the time of sentencing, a violation of § 841(b)(1)(B) carried a mandatory minimum sentence of five years and a maximum sentence of forty years imprisonment. (Dkt. 59 at 1). Defendant entered into a written plea agreement with the United States on January 23, 2003, and pled guilty the same day. (Dkts. 13–14). At the sentencing hearing, the Court found that Defendant qualified as a career offender based on prior convictions for malicious wounding and felony possession with intent to distribute, and Defendant’s Guidelines range was therefore enhanced under U.S.S.G. § 4B1.1. Defendant was sentenced to 188 months imprisonment and 4 years of supervised release. (Dkt. 20). Defendant later filed a motion to reduce his sentence pursuant to Amendments 706 and 782, but they were denied due to his career offender status. (Dkts. 23, 35). In 2016, Defendant filed a Johnson § 2255 petition, which the Court denied. (Dkts. 38, 46). Defendant was subsequently identified by the Court as an individual who may qualify for retroactive application of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 under Section 404 of the First Step Act of 2018. (Dkt. 55).

Section 404 of the First Step Act of 2018 permits “a court that imposed a sentence for a covered offense” to “impose a reduced sentence as if sections 2 and 3 of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 (Public Law 111–220; 124 Stat. 2372) were in effect at the time the covered offense was committed.” Pub. L. No. 115-015, § 404, 132 Stat. 015, 015 (2018). A “covered offense” is defined as “a violation of a Federal criminal statute, the statutory penalties for which were modified by section 2 or 3 of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 (Public Law 111–220; 124 Stat. 2372), that was committed before August 3, 2010.” Id.

Modifications of sentences under the First Step Act are governed by 18 U.S.C. § 3582(c)(1)(B), which states: “The court may modify an imposed term of imprisonment to the extent otherwise expressly permitted by statute or by Rule 35 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure.” In determining if modification is appropriate, the Court will first address whether a reduction is consistent with the First Step Act, and will then “consider whether the authorized reduction is warranted, either in whole or in part, according to the facts set forth in § 3553(a).”

<sup>1</sup> Although § 3582(c)(1)(B) does not reference § 3553(a) as do other § 3582(c) subsections, that alone does not bar consideration of other factors. While the Dillon Court analyzed the procedures under § 3582(c)(2), the language quoted is reflected in § 3582(c)(1)(B). Additionally, this approach is mirrored by the Fourth Circuit’s analysis under Rule 35(b), which allows the Court to “consider other sentencing factors . . . when deciding the extent of a reduction.” United States v. Davis, 679 F.3d 190, 195 (4th Cir. 2012); see also United States Sentencing Commission, Office of Education and Sentencing Practice, FIRST STEP Act, https://www.ussc.gov/sites/default/files/pdf/training/newsletters/2019-special\_FIRST-STEP-Act.pdf (last visited Feb. 11, 2019). (“[T]he courts should consider the guidelines and policy statements, along with the other 3553(a) factors, during the resentencing.”).

The parties agree that Defendant's offense of conviction is a "covered offense" as defined by the First Step Act. The offense was committed before August 3, 2010 and the applicable penalties were modified by section 2 of the Fair Sentencing Act, which "reduced the statutory penalties for cocaine based offenses" in order to "alleviate the severe sentencing disparity between crack and powder cocaine." United States v. Peters, 843 F.3d 572, 575 (4th Cir. 2016). As relevant in this case, section 2 of the Fair Sentencing Act increased the drug quantities necessary to trigger mandatory minimum sentences under 21 U.S.C. § 841(b)(1). Pub. L. No. 111–220, 124 Stat. 2372 (2010). Specifically, the threshold requirement to trigger the mandatory minimum sentence under 21 U.S.C. § 841(b)(1)(B) was increased from five grams to 28 grams.

At the time of Defendant's sentencing, the applicable sentencing range was five years to forty years imprisonment. Under the First Step Act, the statutory range for Defendant's offense, taking into account Defendant's total offense level of 29, his criminal history category of VI, and his career offender status, is 151 months to 188 months imprisonment. See 21 U.S.C. § 841(b)(1)(B).

The Court has been advised that Defendant has served approximately 163 months of his original sentence. The parties agree that a reduction of Defendant's sentence to time served, to be followed by 3 years of supervised release, is appropriate in this case. After a review of the record and consideration of the factors set forth in § 3553(a), the Court determines that this is an appropriate modification. All other terms of the original sentence will remain the same.

The Clerk is directed to send copies of this memorandum opinion and the accompanying order to Defendant, all counsel of record, the United States Probation Office, and the United States Marshals Service, for delivery to the Bureau of Prisons.

Entered this 12th day of February 2019.
